Publication Database

Introduction

- The European XFEL Publication Database is our institutional repository, providing a comprehensive record of activities at EuXFEL
- Purpose is to collect and catalogue documentation and publications
  - Resulting from user experiments at EuXFEL
  - Authored by EuXFEL staff and guests during their time here
- Since 2016 we have used a provider called TIND (spin-off of CERN), using software based on Invenio digital library framework
- We have over 2000 records (800+ journal articles) dating back to 2004

Scope of collecting

We collect the following document types:

- Articles
- Book contributions
- Posters
- Preprints
- Proceedings
- Reports
- Talks
- Theses

Scope of collecting

- We catalogue publications which were substantially created during your time at EuXFEL, e.g. “if your major contributions to this paper were made while you worked for European XFEL”
- Take a look at the Staff Note: Staff Publication Policy (Alfresco EuXFEL Docs > Internal Documents > Staff Notes) for more information and guidance

Adding your own publications

Adding your own publications is optional!
You can also just send the DOI or file to us at tind@xfel.eu

- We track EuXFEL publications from various places (Web of Science, Scopus etc.), but the most reliable source is the author!
  - DOI import
  - Add the mandatory fields (marked with *) and we will do the rest
  - Once submitted, the record goes to the admins (Kurt and Laura) for approval
- After approval, the record populates the relevant online lists at www.xfel.eu

Access to files

- Two levels of access
  - Public (open access)
  - Restricted (only for logged-in people)
- Access to restricted collections is limited to logged-in people
- Only people with an @xfel.eu email address can make an account

Wiki - About the Publication Database

About the database

The European XFEL Publication Database is the institutional repository for European XFEL. Collecting and cataloguing European XFEL's documentation helps to provide a comprehensive record of scientific activities at the facility.

Purpose

The purpose of the publication database is to collect and catalogue all documentation and publications:

- Resulting from user experiments at the European XFEL facility
- Produced by European XFEL staff and guests during their time at the company

Types

We collect the following record types:

- Articles
- Book contributions
- Posters
- Preprints
- Proceedings
- Reports
- Talks
- Theses

For requests about the Database, or for information on other documentation topics (such as the Presentation Library, Overleaf), please get in touch!

For a tailored training session for your group on the EuXFEL Publication Database, please contact us at tind@xfel.eu
